ABROAD SPECTRUM

RASHID IRANI

FIRST MAN
Direction: Damien Chazelle
Actors: Ryan Gosling, Claire Foy
Rating: ★★★★★

▪ First Man sustains a sense of wonder seldom attained by movies in outer space sub-genre.

One giant leap that lands perfectly

Derived from an authorised biography of Neil Armstrong, the audaciously structured narrative spans the eight years between 1961 and 1969 that led to the test pilot-turned-astronaut's historic first moonwalk.

From an awe-inspiring opening sequence, shot almost entirely from the vantage point of the cockpit of a malfunctioning fighter jet, to its heart-wrenching finale, First Man sustains a sense of wonder seldom attained by movies in the outer space sub-genre.

Devoting as much time to the edge-of-the-seat depictions of manned missions as he does to the interactions between Armstrong and his family and colleagues, Chazelle's command over the visual medium is especially evident in his use of extreme close-ups and the juxtaposition of lengthy takes with an array of subliminally brief shots.

It would be a real shame if the technical prowess of the director's collaborators (cinematographer Linus Sandgren, production designer Nathan Crowley and film editor Tom Cross) were not acknowledged by the Oscars next year.

Cheers are also due to the impeccable ensemble, led by Ryan Gosling and Claire Foy as the celebrity, if seemingly conflicted, couple. A dinner-table conversation with their two young children on the eve of the Apollo 11 blast off is emotionally shattering.

The importance of family in everyone's life is succinctly summed up by Chazelle who said, "To me the film became about somebody who had to go to the Moon in order to land on Earth". Even Stanley Kubrick would have approved. Like his iconic 2001: A Space Odyssey (1968), First Man, too, will have a lasting impact.

Two stars shine in this familiar tale of love

A STAR IS BORN
Direction: Bradley Cooper
Actors: Lady Gaga, Bradley Cooper
Rating: ★★★½

▪ Bradley Cooper, Lady Gaga

She's a multiple-Grammy-winning pop diva. But does Lady Gaga have the dramatic range to portray the complex character alluded to in the title? Likewise, can actor Bradley Cooper, a three-time Oscar nominee, marshal his storytelling skills to fashion a notable directorial debut?

Happily the answer to both these questions is a resounding yes. The story of the often-filmed bittersweet romance is familiar. An aspiring young songstress (Lady Gaga) pulls out all the stops as her career blossoms under the mentorship of an ageing, alcoholic Country-and-Western rocker (Bradley Cooper). Next, the hard-drinking superstar's career rapidly nosedives even as his protégé rockets to stardom.

Not surprisingly, the couple's tumultuous relationship suffers a further setback with the love of her life fighting an ongoing battle with addiction, depression and a self-destructive streak. Despite her inevitable sell-out to the soul-sapping music industry, their love remains constant to the very end.

Lady Gaga and Bradley Cooper share sizzling on-screen chemistry apart from performing most of their songs live on camera.

An emotional roller-coaster, the updated A Star Is Born heralds the birth of two major entertainers: actor-writer-director-singer Bradley Cooper and the truly astonishing Lady Gaga.
